Friday. August 15, 1873. The Shah in England. The Baglish people have been lionising the Shah of Pereis of late, and that august genan no doubt enjoyed himself hugely. The residents of the sea-girt isle have a kind of passion for llous-in fact the king of the ferest is the emblem of the nation. Therefore when they get hold of such a rare and at the City Pound, Yates Street, on the 16 ast., at 12 o'clock noon, if not redeemed by that tim one roan colored Yearling Buil. distinguished specimen of the noble animal se Nusserood-Deen, Shab of Persia, who claims the title of "King of Kings," it is only satural that they should make more than an ordinary amount of fuss over him. As Mark Twain says, the way they put him through was a caution, and between the movements of huge iron-clads, the booming of monster guns, military displays, balls, levees, and the noise and bustle caused by out-door congregations of British subjects numbering tens of thousands of both sexes, His Royal Highness must have been somewhat slightly imseisted with England's power and the magnitude of her resources. Whatever opinion the Shah may form of England and English-men from all he has seen and heard, they can scarcely be of a more mixed character than those to which the representatives of the English press have come with regard to him-self. According to some he is a gentleman of culture, intelligence and refinement of manners, while others represent him to be uncouth in manners, of filthy habits, and the personification of ignorance and arrogance. If the first picture be the true one as to his character, his tour through Europe, and his visit to England particularly, may redound very much to his ewn personal advantage, and prove an incalculable blessing to the authority. He will learn that the greater the degree of civil and religious liberty a people enjoy, so much the greater will be the power them, both at home and abroad. He may possibly learn that the largest measure of be surest guarantees a monarch can have of his ewa personal safety and the stability of his government. Should he be the ignorant and arrogant despot that some writers say he is, he may possibly entirely misapprehend the true motives which have prompted the magnificent demonstrations made in honor of his those marked tokens of respect which were meant as a recognition of his exalted posiclouds a sovereign ruler. Instead of learning lessons of wisdom and tolerance from the scenes be witnessed and the bemage paid to his rank and dignity, he may return to Teheran a greater despot than he ever was before, vastly more in conceit of this notice to anniv for a greater despot than with himself, and prepared to rule his unhappy people with greatly increased severity.

His visit to England has a political bearing of no small importance, and it is because his friendship may be turned to very considerable account in connection with British interable account in connection with British interable account in connection with British interacts in Asis, that his presence in England
Bas been the occasion for so much display.
On this subject a contemporary says, "The two great European Powers that are striving for supremacy in the East are gradually approaching each other, and it is left that conproaching each other.

Such a bar-Ther every one can see by a single glance at a map is to be had in Persia alone. In order to get to India, Russia must first get at Affghanistan, and as with a large army she canon the West; while to secure this, she must, in the first place, have either complete-ly conquered Persia, or induced her to be-come her firm ally. With a hestile Persia on her flank, Russia could never operate upon The sisten successfully, and could therefore never hope to assail India with effect.

But with Persia conquered or friendly, such in the above ranches of business, and by proxiptness and attention, they hope to receive a share of the public support. Stocks, Stock in Trade or Furniture purchased or Cash.

Liberal Advances made on Consomments. such an enemy as Russia from being actually her sext neighbor, she must have her at such distance as to prevent her exerting any disturbing influence upon the mind of Britain's varied subject peoples, and making it to be felt that her prestige may any day be eclipsed by that of her unserspulous neighbor and that. If that tranquil feeling of conscious superiority on our part, and the hopelessness of resistance on the part of our subjects, were of resistance on the part of our subjects, were once shaken or removed, then there would be required to maintain our position in the East abject of the state of men and means which Indian finances could not, and which the British taxpayer would not, bear. If such is the case, we must keep Russia from making further advances Indiaward, and that either by diplomacy, or, if necessary, even by war, it plomacy, or, if necessary, even by war, it I hair at all bazards, our present position in "Un-British." The Colonist of Wednesday has a subleader accusing us of extremely un-British conduct for having, as it states, "passed Household Furniture, Piostence of condemnation upon Sir John A. entlemen have been heard, much less tried.' to which it takes exception, and upon which which has been developed by the discussion to which those charges have given rise, that bribery and corruption have been practiced.

The Daily Standard.

Macdonald and his colleagues before those at a liew in reply to the above, we have just to bay our contemporary tells a fib. The article it bases its unfounded accusation, referred not to the charges which have been preferred against Sir John A. Macdonald and his cel-leagues by Mr. Huntington, but to the fact, bribery and corruption have been practiced the Government but probably by the Opposition as well, during the last general election of members to the House of Commons. We take it that this fact has been established beyond a doubt, both by documentary and sworn testimony, nor has Sir John A. Macdonald, or any other member or his Cabinet, and any attempt to deny the fact. For that other purpose did Sir John ask for and objain at least twenty thousand dollars from his friend Mr. Abbott? or Sir Geo, E. Cartier forty thousand dollars for a calculus purposes? forty thousand dollars, for election purposes?

Forty thousand dollars was enough to cover The Legitimate election expenses of the whole the bundred members of the House of Commons, and yet it took the whole of that large sam to cover Sir George's disbursements for the city of Moatreal alone. But this is not the matter for which Sir John A. Macdonald the matter for which Sir John A. Macdonald the matter for which Sir John A. Macdonald and his colleagues are now arraigned at the and his colleagues are now arraigned at the colleagues are now arraigned at the land. given by Madame Anna Bishop and troupe test an exceedingly close affair. The return match will be looked forward to with much large and very appreciative audience. Pressure of matter deprives us of the pleasure of alluding to each item of the programme separately, and words fail us in attempting to do justice to the united talent of Madame Bishop, Messrs. Wilkie, Gottscalk and Gilder. The supreme bappiness of every effort made by the great Prima Donna is almost rivalled by the wonderful execution of Mr. Gilder, the pianist, so ably supported by the voluminous baritone voice of Mr. Gottschalk, and the clear, ringing, but less powerful tenor of Mr. Wilkie. Amongst the pieces which elicited the greatest amount of applause last night were "Casta Diva," "A Mexican Cancion" and "Joe Anderson, my Joe," by Madame Bishop; "The Message," by Mr. Wilkie; "Non e Ver" and the "Stirrup Cup" by Mr Gottschalk; a duet, "Quanto Amore," from the opera "L'Elixir d'Amore," by the Prima Denna and Mr. Gottschalk, and every piano solo with which Mr. Gilder favored the audience, the duet especially being justly and emphatically applauded.

We tegret that this unusually brilliant combination of talent will remain with us but two days more, and that to-night and to-Byes, leg byes, wides, no balls. morrow will be Madame Auna Bishop's final concerts in this city. On Tuesday the Prima Donna leaves for New Westminster, which is to be favored with an entertainment on the evening of that day, and returning to Vicsoria on Wednesday she will leave per the steamer North Pacific on the following day. Victoria will regret her absence no less than each act of the Government as an "egregious mony of other people is at present in quesblunder," a "ridiculous farce," or something tion. The record in the Gazette is by no of the sort; and by branding those papers means flattering; it is in fact such as ought which support the Government as "paid to make any one feel easy as to what the sub-organs" which scribble at the command of their "masters." CIVILIANS AGAINST THE NAVY.

Yesterday a game was played, the best of the season, between eleven of the Royal Navy and eleven civilians. A considerable number of visitors witnessed the match evin cing much delight in the contest. The band of the flagship was on the grounds and played a selection of pieces much to the et. joyment of the ladies who were present. The Governor and family, the Admiral and officers were among those who honored the cricketers with their presence. The game commenced at 10:45 a. m., and closed at 5:45 p. m., with the result given below, and the Civilians had the strongest team to cope with that they have met for several years past. The match was decided on the first innings, which resulted in favor of the Victorians by twelve runs. Canada and the Empire.

CANADA AND THE ENPIRE: A SPEECE. BY GILBERT MALCOLM SPROAT, AGENT-GENERAL POR BRITISH COLUMBIA. LONDON : 4, LIME-STREET-SQUARE, E.C.

[Elinburgh Correspondent of the Dumfries (Scotland) Standard.]

Talking of this colonial question, a very statesmanlike and able speech by a country man of yours—the Hou. Mr. G M. Sproat Agent-General for British Columbia—has come under my notice which is worth reading. Mr Sproat is an able aud a well known author on ethnological and political topics, one of those cultured scientific politicians of the Lyon Playfair or Grant Duff type, of whom I am sorry to say we have so few in the House of Commons at present. Mr. Sproat's speech entitled "Canada and the Empire," is a bold but thoughtful address, expressive of the opinion of the youngest political men of Canada on the relation between the Home Government and the Dominion. He proposes that Great Britain and Ireland should form an incorporating union with Canada just in the same way as England and Scotland united with each others. He further proposes that the present political system of Canada now working so successfully should be adopted for regulating the home affairs of the Uni ted Empire-viz, of England, Scotland, Ireland, and Canana. He points out that if we are to retain our present prestige we must not let our colonies go. One of two alternatives lies before us—incorporation or separation.

On the principle that The loyal to their Crown Are loyal to their own far sons, who kee Our Ocean Empire, with her boundless homes—For ever broadening England:

I think Mr. Sproat makes it plain that his prorogue Parliament until it shall have had an posal is far more to be sympathised with than opportunity of taking steps to insure a partible policy of dismemberment which says to dling with the matter at all, and who say we have no colonial question, Mr Sproat ingeniously replies that no great community of Englishmen will consent for any length of time to occupy a municipal position It is bound to strive to propagate at first hand its ideas and principles and advance their practical development among the nations of the earth, and the Canadians feel they cannot do this so long as the Domin-Councils of the Empire as a whole. It would be impossible for me to go into details as to the varied and cognane arguments with which Lordship by the different religious bodies ago, at Aberdeen, said that anyone would over which he has presided for such a long earn the enduring gratitude of the country who proposed some feasible method of re-HALIFAX, N.S., July 30 .- The Governor- lieving the English Parliament of work which cived by the Mayor and Corporation, Admi- in a few years the expansive movement of al Fanshawe, Lieutenant Governor Archi- population in the American Continent will oald and lady, Archbishop Connolly, Bishop concentrate in Central Canada, because now reached its limits, and because the greater embracing one balf of the entire United States, is an arid desert, the trade of the Paci fic would naturally in such a case be ours, for the shortest route is through this Central Canada to a port on British Columbia by rarlway which will be soon finished. It appears to me that they hold possession spectable shipwrights, who had carried on, in the same spot, shipbuilding and repairing since February, 1869. They made application to the presumed to-be agent of the 'ocal Government for a lease, or to rent the said for repairs. The total loss may be fairly estimated at $600,000. The coal bark which was proved against them, he would vote to that no lease could be given until the question were settled by the Government. In the month of April of the present year inquiries were made of the Indian Agent as to whether the same land could be rented or leased.

So loyal is too costly? Friends, you love Is but a burden; loose the bond and go!

The answer was to this effect: That the Indian Agent had not got his authority, but expected to have it shortly. When app t on was made for a lease previous to the Indian Agent going up north, recently, in H.M. S. Boxer, Mr. Meldram made application for this piece of land. He was asked by the Indian Agent if it were the same piece of land that Mesers. Collins & Cook were applying for? His answer was "no," never thinking that anyone would apply for a piece of land where material was laid down for hauling out vessels to repair. To his surprise, a short time afterwards, Mr. Lowenberg came down to him while working on the steamer Sir James Douglas, informing him that Col-lins & Cook were going to get the land, an i would lay down ways to take out vessels of any size. Mr. Meldram went to see the In-dian Agent, and was told by him that he had given his word to these men to go on the land. He had been over and seen the place, and could not take back his word. The consequence was that these two men who had used the ground for shipbuilding purposes for several years, and who consequently had the first right to it, were turned off and the gentlemen named in the Colonist given possession. If this is going quietly to work, to turn two respectable, men with families out of employment, and give their privilege to two young men who are no more capable of constructing docks or building ships of large burthen than were the former occupants.
